

We have something for you and humanity that could be the cosmic archeological find of our time. It solves the innate quandary that we all carry around inside us; why am I here and what is my purpose?

The year 2012 rapidly approaches and as living entities on this world, knowing our purpose seems of most importance to more of humanity than ever before. We have spent the last 15 years in practical and esoteric pursuit of understanding the answer to that question. A universal synchronization with spiritual transfer through a single point inside a human heart took place April 4th 1994 at the Church of the Holy Sepulcher in Jerusalem, Israel. At that precise moment consciousness took on a drastically enhanced multidimensional granularity perspective for anyone capable of implementing just such an upgrade. This event, neither scientifically provable nor explainable profoundly changed life on this planet by enabling two-way communication with a higher consciousness and almost no one knows it.

Since our involvement in the Jerusalem happening, we have longed for external confirmation of the same. Finally in Ottavio Cesare Ramotti's NOSTRADAMUS THE LOST MANUSCRIPT Plate 66 and associated quatrains, we found that validation. Biblical passages refer to it, but in vague terms that often produce conflict at their mention. One may wonder why we waited so long to get the word out; the answer is we did not wait at all. The triple7center.com web site and 5 books all surround the event and associated ramifications.

Our experience in Jerusalem of the acute reality of a Holy city that should be full of love and was not, prompted a 15 year study beginning with faith based conflicts. Starting with the origins of religions, the study expanded into human consciousness and evolution. We eventually developed a thesis, which incorporated Spiritual Evolution from an energy perspective. This was spearheaded by the works of reemerging and newly addressed scientific study in areas such as platonic solids, particle and string theory, fractals, torsion fields, and affects of sound on matter as presented in the Schumann Resonance Theory and Emoto Masaru's water crystal study. Our approach was to unite scientific discoveries with sacred teachings of the world. In this endeavor it was necessary to investigate the esoteric side of religion and include the psychology of archetypes.

We implemented this all-inclusive spiritual life thesis based on pertinent recorded world knowledge and applied it to objective decision making in life's constant choices. A stair-step approach proved effective in developing a workable life application of the thesis that we could present to humanity only after first-hand validation through 15 years of living it. What we have assembled using our previous writings explains the history of Spiritual Evolution from an energy perspective compared to recorded data in all significant areas of study. These areas include not only Theological and Scientific but also Archeological, Historical, Philosophical, Psychological, and Sociological credible writings that range from well known accepted classics to newly disputed books of recent days.

Our material is not the fix. Each individual is the fix and can use our material to realize their purpose and reason for being here. It was our humble privilege to have been there in Jerusalem at that moment and to be here now to present this material. Good people are searching for some answers and a way to help in our world today. It is not a coincidence that President Obama was elected on an agenda that promotes change from business as usual, to fix our nation and the world. Some plans and practices no longer produce desired results and we can replace them with ones that foster success, or at least a way forward.

Since the living thesis is documented, developed, and tested under first hand objective scrutiny, we believe this thesis, whether agreed with or not, provides credible information and starting point for anyone searching. It suggests instead of dictates and always stresses internal confirmation through one's higher consciousness in a healing motivational closed loop of sorts. Only if an individual can live by and use their beliefs, will such a philosophy ever effectively be incorporated into individual life and benefit humanity. The process presented in the thesis adopts the basic premise that applying Divine guidance and knowledge to all decision making, can improve individual and social life on this planet.

The process, although not perfect, is workable and like most fledgling innovative processes, it gets better through familiarity and use. There are difficulties that many will come face-to-face with, but individuals that actively search for the truth in life and can persevere, may experience the great results obtained by the process. It isn't for the lighthearted and will not appeal to everyone, but it does offer hope to individuals that are not finding any in existing establishments to date. This is an alternative venture that uses all available existing resources and then expands them to be inclusive and dynamic instead of exclusive and simply allegorical or literal.

This practical self-evaluation process is expandable into all aspects of life. Connecting with the Divine and living in such guidance is not a new process and constantly cycles through humanity as can be proven through our recorded history. It seems to be time for everyone to get involved in making a difference in their own life as well as others lives. We have experienced first hand how the living thesis process has already helped those it has touched and we are asking for your help to make it available to others that are seeking help today.
